

Stock Market Ends Good Week

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market Saturday finished a good week and one of the best months in the past several years with favorites in the market pushing up fractions to more than a point to peak levels since early 1943 on expanding volume.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was up 4 of a point at 67, the first time the composite has touched this mark since Jan. 4, 1940. Transfers totaled 215,790 shares against 422,280 a week ago.

Prominent gainers Saturday, many in the "new high" division, included L. S. Steel, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Goodrich, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, American Telephone, Allied Chemical, Johnsonville, Pittston Co., R-R-O, Reynolds Tobacco "B", Commercial Investment Trust, Loew's, Liggett & Myers "B", United Aircraft, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central and D. Post.

CHICAGO GRAIN—Wheat Saturday closed a week which saw trading in the grain expand to record levels with a spurt of more than 5 cents as persistent commission houses buying absorbed all profit-taking and pushed closing prices to new peaks since 1937. It was an active market featured by the December contract's crossing the $1.00 line.

At the finish wheat was 3/4 higher, July $1.44 1/2, corn was unchanged, July $1.02, oats were up 1/4-1/2 and rice was ahead 2 1/2-2 3/4.

CHICAGO PRODUCE—Butter and eggs, no prices available as mercantile exchange closed Saturday.

FT. WORTH LIVESTOCK—Livestock: Cattle $14. Estimated receipts: cattle 75; calves 35; hogs 100; sheep 1100.

Few good fat cows $11.50-12.50; butcher grades $10.25-11; good fat calves $12-14-14 1/2; medium grades $11.50-12.50.

Good and choice 190-250 pound butcher hogs $14; good 160-180 lightweights $12-14; packing sows $12.50-13.50.

Good shorn lambs with No. 1 pelts $14; load medium grade shorn wethers $7.

NEW YORK FUTURES—Increased trade price-fixing and short covering, many by the coming holiday put cotton futures prices up a little near the close Saturday.

Final quotations were 19 to 25 cents a bale higher.

New Orleans was a buyer of late positions and there was considerable switching from July to later months. The desire of shorts to even up contracts was based on possible over-holiday developments accepting the raw cotton price structure.

Old-Age Pensions For June to Be Delayed A Week

AUSTIN, Tex., (AP)—Payment of June old age pensions will be delayed a week or ten days pending federal approval of the revised state plan to conform with the 48th Legislature's old age assistance legislation.

June payments will go out, Welfare Department officials said, as soon as federal security officials act. This procedure is necessary under the law making available federal matching money.

The June average payment will be $20.31 to 183,154 pensioners. It is still $2.43 under the amount authorized by law and which would be paid if funds were available.

"Since the appropriation of the 48th Legislature is not sufficient to eliminate cuts in old age checks," a Welfare Department statement explained, "provision thus becomes an accepted system of distributing the old age appropriation."

Something to Fight for is Said to Boost Army Morale

Cpl. Siegfried Hoxter, native of Frankfurt, Germany, who fled the country after being held in a concentration camp for anti-Nazis, served in the French army, and is now at Camp Maxey, is shown here in his French uniform with a beret, as he walked along a street in Marseilles, France, and also as he appears today in American khaki. The latter picture was taken recently while he was in Lexington, Ky., for a special engineering course at the University of Kentucky.

citizenship was taken away from him, along with that of others, whose activities made them dangerous to the Hitler regime.

Before he left his native land, he was even rounded up and spent two weeks in a German prison as a result of his connection with anti-Nazi organizations and more especially because of a public speech he made against the rising party in Germany. Before Hitler actually was in full power, Hoxter had an argument at a public meeting with Goebbels over the political situation. This meeting was broken up by the police and the young student had to leave Germany because of it. He later returned and took part in the underground movement before he finally left Germany, crossing the border illegally into France.

"At that time, there were at least 10,000,000 people in Germany who did not want Hitler and his organization, but they could do nothing to stem his rising power, as the leaders of the liberals were weak and powerless."

After going to France, Hoxter became an assistant professor in atomic physics at the University of Lyons in the south of France. He joined the French army in September, 1939, and served until the fall of France.

After the German offensive which started in May, 1940, he went to spend his furlough in Paris, and while there, the Germans came nearer, but the governor general announced that France would be defended against invasion. Later, an announcement followed that there would be no defense and all soldiers were ordered to leave the city for the south of France. Hoxter joined a column of refugees who fled towards the south and were bombed by Italian planes en route.

When the Vichy government took over, concentration camps were built for those who opposed the invasion even after the armistice, and Hoxter found himself in one of these camps near Albi. "As for physical treatment was concerned, it was not so bad; there were no beatings, no torture as in the German camps," Hoxter says, but the food was pretty bad. "A tiny piece of bread had to last each of us for the entire day. This was divided into three parts, one of which was eaten in the morning with a liquid called coffee; the second went with a yellowish liquid called soup, and the last piece was eaten with a brownish liquid which might have been soup." Dogs which appeared in camp were stoned to death and used for food by many prisoners; and other dogs soon learned not to roam about the camp. "I saw this with my own eyes, but I passed up the dog meat," Hoxter says.

He was released by intervention of Lyons University officials and a so-called "intellectual emergency visa" was granted him by the American consulate at Marseilles. After crossing the Pyrenees to Seville, he waited for five weeks before he secured passage to the United States on a Spanish freighter. When Hoxter discovered that the boat, which had normal accommodations for only 12 passengers, was carrying 1250 persons on the trip, he picked out a life-boat and spent the entire time en route in it. "I can't tell you of the horrors of that trip. From Seville, we went to Lisbon, where we were not allowed to leave the boat during its eight days there, as the Portuguese authorities suspected it carried disease-infected passengers. At Bermuda, we found the English to be generous with the badly-needed food and clothing. After two days there, we left for Cuba where about one half our passengers left the boat, conditions becoming more nearly normal. And there, letters were written to the American consul drawing his attention to conditions on the freighter," Hoxter says.

Some Pay $1,250 for Trip

While he only paid $450 for the voyage, he knew of others who had paid as much as $1250 for the trip, and on arrival in New York, officers came aboard and started an investigation. The ship was seized and later released under $500,000 bond. And from the suit which was brought, Hoxter received a refund of $50 early this year.

WAR HOUSING APPROVED

The National Housing Agency has approved a program for the construction of 100 publicly-financed temporary family units for war workers in Bastrop, Texas.

freighter was torpedoed and sunk. "The story of the 'Navemar'—hell ship—has been told in print and in the courts," says Hoxter, and now he only wants to forget his experiences while aboard it.

Private resources enabled him to continue his research in mathematics after landing in this country, and it was while engaged in this work, that he was drafted for army service in August, 1941.

From Fort Dix, N.J., he went to Camp Croft, S.C., thence to Camp Maxey. He recently returned to the Texas camp after taking a three-months engineering course at the University of Kentucky.

Hoxter now feels that he is doing a worthwhile work towards helping end the war, but he doesn't think victory will come this summer or autumn, as some do, but "only when Germany has suffered sufficient military defeats on European soil. Then she will crack."

War Officials To Inspect Synthetic Rubber Plant

BATON ROUGE, La., (AP)—The nation's rubber czar, William Jeffers, has his "cradle of synthetic rubber" rocking energetically for a display to top Army, Navy and production chiefs arriving with him here Sunday.

Already more than half the vast Baton Rouge 70,000-ton rubber facilities are in production, a feat attributed by Jeffers, during his recent feud with Undersecretary of War Robert Patterson, to vigorous action rather than "sitting around desks and issuing orders and grouching."

Now Jeffers and Patterson, having buried the hatchet publicly in their dispute over priorities, are making their promised tour together. Their avowed purpose is to review the situation on the ground to the end that any bottlenecks that may be found may be broken for the benefits of the related programs.

Accompanying them to Baton Rouge, first stop in inspecting southwest gasoline and rubber plants, will be Undersecretary of the Navy James V. Forrestal, vice chairman of the War Production Board Charles E. Wilson, Deputy Petroleum Administrator Ralph K. Davies, and other leading officials.

Soil erosion prevention, construction of anything from an obstacle course to a beer garden, mosquito control—all are part of the work of the post engineers at Camp Maxey.

The engineers, headed by Maj. James C. Gilchrist, now are engaged in grading and ditching and sodding of many areas in the camp as part of the soil erosion program. The mosquito control project also is in progress.

Other projects include: construction of six beer gardens; a food and clothing market in Area 10; a traffic control island at Gate 5; bathing benches on Lamar Lake, due to be completed by June 8; and the building of a road from the Laundry to Area 18 and of a road from the Station Hospital to the Army Service Forces Replacement Training Center.

The obstacle courses at the camp, as well as the mock German village, also were built by the post engineers.

"Please limit your call to 5 minutes. Others are waiting"

Many Long Distance calls go through about as fast as ever.

Whenever that happens, the operator will ask you to limit your Long Distance calls to 5 minutes.

The idea is to give everybody a fair share of the wires. That gets to be more and more important every day.
